JUF follows a blind submission process. All work must be submitted with a cover sheet. A designated person is responsible for assigning a code to each submission. This person has no voice in the decision to accept or reject a given piece. We attempt to preserve anonymity in all cases; however, there is no way to guarantee 100% blind submissions. Therefore, professional discretion is upheld at all times; all submissions are treated as anonymous.

All decisions are made at the meeting by JUF designates. All submissions are acknowledged with acceptance or rejection letters as promptly as possible.
