

A foundation of strength and support our community relies on

JUF is a 125-year-old humanitarian organization serving Chicagoans of all faiths and Jewish people around the world. Our community's generosity helps JUF power the day-to-day operations of local Jewish programs, facilities and partner agencies—and enables our unique ability to respond in times of crisis.

We take care of people.

Children without enough to eat. Holocaust survivors living in isolation. Families struggling to keep the heat on. Immigrants striving to begin new lives. People with disabilities who need support to live independently. Teens facing mental health crises. Our flagship partner agencies at home and abroad—CJE SeniorLife, JCFS Chicago, JCC Chicago, Sinai Chicago, the Jewish Agency for Israel and the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee—care for people at every age and stage.

With a strong foundation already in place, JUF is always prepared to act when a crisis arises. Our vast infrastructure allows us to adapt in pivotal moments, quickly mobilizing dollars where they're needed most.

We engage people in Jewish life.

Social and networking events. Jewish experiences. Volunteer and leadership opportunities. Our programs offer pathways for involvement and inclusion that are as unique and diverse as our community. From baby to bubbe, there are endless ways to participate in Jewish life with JUF.

We secure our community.

With record levels of antisemitic hate threatening both our community's safety and its mental health, JUF continues our work to ensure that everyone can securely participate in Jewish life, providing 24/7 support to students on campus, antisemitism trainings for schools and workplaces, and maintaining strong relationships with local law enforcement. We engage in all facets of civic life to ensure Jewish representation and fight hate.

We are together for good—here to stay and here to make an impact—with our community.
